

Rae Street is a longtime peace and anti-nuclear activist, working at the grass roots both locally and internationally. She was a founder member of CADU, the Campaign Against Depleted Uranium, in Manchester, Britain. She is an active member of CND, the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, in her own village and with friends across Britain and the world. Currently she is Vice President of IPB, the International Peace Bureau.